

Sec. 17-311-24. Identification of communications to the commissioner

Communications should embrace only one matter and should contain the name and address of the sender and an appropriate file reference to the subject of the communication. When the subject matter pertains to a proceeding pending before the commissioner, the title of the proceeding and the docket number should be given. Failure to observe this rule may result in rejection and return of the communication to the sender by the commissioner.

(Effective March 17, 1983)